5:00 p.m. Lecture held by Mark van Stiphout

The European Green Deal is a milestone in European regulation and is going to shape the energy transition in Europe. During 2021 the European Commission also launched the new framework research program called Horizon Europe. Horizon Europe represents the research instrument to enable the implementation of the Green Deal. The presentation will explain how the program is organised and its relation with the legislation illustrating the role that Research and Innovation will have in the next few years to define the future of the energy system in Europe.
